VOYAGER ATTUNEMENT PROJECT Instructions For Sending in Your Questions/Comments

January 30, 1986

OVERVIEW

One of the major aspects of this Project is the reporting of questions, comments and experiences from each of you throughout the Projects' duration. This communication will form the base from which the entire Project will evolve. It is also the best means by which the Source and I can help you, and through which we can share our experiences and contribute to the growth of all. Being of such importance, I feel that it is wise for us to define some guidelines at the onset in order to immediately establish the clearest and best lines of communication possible.

PROBLEMS/OBSTACLES

These situations will be given first priority. I will first review them to determine if any of my personal experiences or those of the other Voyagers might be of help in the resolution of the "block" you are experiencing. These suggestions will be sent to you immediately, and your question presented in the next "check-reading" as is necessary. If no help can be found in the experiences of the group and myself, a check-reading will be conducted as soon as possible, and the results sent to you immediately. Special Note: Check-readings will be available all throughout the Project, and I will do my best to make them available as often as needed.

Recognizing that this aspect of the Project could quickly become over-whelming to me if not organized, I ask that you please consider the following when sending these to me:

1. Review the material you have received to be sure you aren't overlooking a possible easy solution.

2. Try to get your own Guidance on the block, and even if you don't understand what you get, sent it to me along with the problem. It will possibly help me to help you understand what you have been given.

3. Write down your problem, as you understand it, and then put it aside and out of your mind as best you can. Then, after waiting 24 hours, take out what you have written and review it again, first by reading it, and then by briefly meditating on it. If no solution is evident, try reducing what you have written down into one or more major points. Sometimes these procedures will bring forth a sudden answer. If not, send it to me immediately, I don't want you to be limited by it any longer than is necessary.

4. When sending me your questions, please try to be brief and clear in stating them; but DO send me information on the circumstances involved and the work you've done in trying to resolve them.
