

The Median Point

Audio — The Median Point

If you would, consider for a moment the vastness and unending nature of God's speaking the Word, this is the coming forward of the vastness of Consciousness, as it is the potential for all the Children of God. As they would choose in accordance with that which is within them, thus does the Word respond.

When one or more of the Children of God join together in an activity of exploring creation, or the going forth of the potentials from (capital c) Consciousness, the Word of God, there is created, as a result in harmony with that of the will of these Children, in accordance with their choices. These choices, since they are defined, are no longer equal to the purity of Father's Word in its original essence, which is eternal. This is not, in that sense, a judgement, but merely a statement of definition. So, it is then, placed into position (so to say), wherein it does not impinge upon the freewill choices of any other of the Children of God who are not choosing that agreed upon expression now called finite.

So, if we might place into the imagination (so to say) the vastness of God's Word, and then on the periphery (so to say, for reference) are the manifold creations of the Children of God. Some of these have moved into defined expression such as you know in the Earth, what you call three dimensional form, the lack of movement of the potentials of Father's Word in the general sense (not totally, but generally).

Now, this peripheral finiteness could be looked upon as a realm (so to say). And from the center of the realm moving outwards towards (capital c) Consciousness, the definition as was and is the choices of those Children of God who are forming this realm, diminish. This is in accordance with Universal Law. And the further one moves, the moreso like a broadcast signal in the Earth, are the choices of those Children dimmed, diminished, weakened, until you reach a certain point where they are (likened unto an audio broadcast) inaudible. They are no longer even that which you would call static, as one would seek to tune to them.

Now then, every soul, every Child of God who has so chosen to be a part of an activity in the realm, for in this example called Earth, has the line of light that connects to their Spirit, which is not bound, not in the finite, but is supporting it through the line of light of choice. It may seem outwardly that this is a duality (and in a sense, it might be defined in that way), however, within the finite form in the Earth is the presence of that Spirit.

At the opposite end of that long line of light is the pure expression of your Spirit (using you as the example here). When the self in the Earth begins to choose to know themselves beyond the finite expression, the line of light as it is in the Earth, in essence, pulses backward along the line of light to your Spirit. This begins a reciprocal movement.

The Spirit and self brighten the line of light, and if that soul in the Earth is seeking to find their way out of a situation in which they feel bound, limited, or even dominated, they may call to their Spirit in such a way that the Spirit actually manifests at a point between the finite realm and the infinite realm. We have called this the Median Point, or middle point if you prefer. It is the furthest approach that the Spirit can move in proximity to the Earth without actually ... A moment, please ... Yes. Without the self in the Earth actually willing to accept the Spirit fully.

If the self in the Earth is willing to accept the Spirit fully, there is the movement to the center of the self in the Earth, where the purity of the Spirit is complete. Then the line of light between the infinite Spirit and the Spirit in the finite expression become such that, for all practical purposes, there is no separateness. There is yet the experience in finiteness and the experience in the infinite, but these are in utter harmony. In this case, you would be awakening the Christ Spirit.

Those Spirits that move to the Median Point are those who are serving their counterpart in the Earth who are beginning this process.

So, if you wish to experience this, the obvious would be to begin the process with complete dedication and relegation of that which limit to know the center of the light of your Spirit within, and you will find that line of light to your infinite self. Many have done this. Many are doing this. Some have been influenced by the call of others and have had it reflected within them, and therefore, they have set themselves Free.

To know the Median Point is to create a potential for empowering yourself while yet in the Earth. This is not done idly or casually; you can't do this on a weekend meditation. You must do it from the sincerity of the center of your Be-ing, for there is no illusion involved here, only truth. And you must bear that truth in order to accomplish the awakening of self at the Median Point. See?
